Freedom Park (HMFP) is uniquely positioned to broaden the awareness and recognition of its rich story. Funding from the State of South Carolina will allow HMFP to With no other site serving as such a template or illuminating the authentic story of the place where freedom began for America's Black citizens, Historic Mitchelville

State of South Carolina will play an integral role in the telling of this story. appreciative of how everyday people can impact history. In addition, HMFP can engage in an exploration of the bigger issues embedded in the daily activities of fought for, and tested for decades to come—and continue to shape American life. At a national level, Mitchelville remains an important, but heretofore largely people of Mitchelville were seeking justice, flexing economic and political power, and beginning to pursue the rights of citizenship. These issues would be debated, Mitchelville residents. Simply by working for pay, learning how to read, attending church, living with family in their own homes, and electing town officials, the help visitors appreciate the richness of African American history and struggle (as well as the ways in which we are all interconnected) - and be amazed and forgotten, chapter in the story of freedom, self-determination, opportunity, and citizenship rights in America — a story still being written. HMFP is greatful that the
